

MR. TWIDDY

PRESENTS his most respectful compliments to the Ladies and Gentlemen of Cambridge, and has the happiness to inform them, that on Saturday Evening the FAMILY PARTY was honoured with a very numerous and respectable audience, and that their humble endeavours to please were received with such marks of candour and attention as were highly flattering. This is not mentioned in order to arrogate any peculiar claims of excellency to the performance, but rather from the wish to acquaint the Public that no sort of interruption may be apprehended during their short stay; for he assures them that the Amusements of the Evening went off with harmony and satisfaction.

— “ The less we deserve,

“ The more is in your bounty.”
